

Three-Month Impact of the COVID-19 Pandemic

The coronavirus pandemic has caused increasingly negative impacts on the economy, and consequently a drastic shift in the narrative from news outlets from January until now. Just over three months ago, news outlets were reporting on the strength of American financial markets and historically low unemployment statistics (an average of 3.9% unemployment during President Trump's first three years in office). However, as the virus has spread throughout the country, the U.S. economy has suffered, with a sharp rise in unemployment and a substantial decline in stock market values.

1,008,260 Cases, 56,666 Deaths,
and Counting in the U.S.

Unemployment Data from The Labor Department; DJIA = Dow Jones Industrial Average